Request to isolate after leaving Baffinland Iron Mine lifted

June 21, 2021
Nunavut-wide

30 sec

The Department of Health has been monitoring the outbreak at Baffinland Iron Mine that began on May 2. Although the outbreak is still ongoing, there are no active cases at the mine site.

As a result, the Nunavut Department of Health is no longer asking people leaving the mine site to isolate after they leave. Individuals who left the site prior to June 20 should complete a full 14 days of isolation. Individuals who leave on or after June 21 should contact their local public health authority upon returning home.

People are advised to continue self-monitoring for symptoms of COVID-19 and contact their local health authority if symptoms develop.
