Nunavut Homeowner Fuel Rebate offered again in 2024

Iqaluit, Nunavut (December 5, 2023) – The Government of Nunavut will offer the Nunavut Homeowner Fuel Rebate again in 2024.

The rebate provides a $1,000 non-taxable lump-sum payment to Nunavut residents who own their home to help with heating costs.

“The Nunavut Homeowner Fuel Rebate was launched in 2023 to help Nunavut homeowners with higher costs of heating their homes due to inflation and federal carbon tax increases. We are offering this rebate again in 2024 to continue supporting homeowners,” said Minister of Finance Lorne Kusugak.

Applications for the 2024 rebate are available as of December 1. Homeowners can also still apply for the current 2023 rebate until December 31, 2023, if they have not yet received it.
