Holiday fire safety with the Nunavut fire marshal's office

Start Date: December 11, 2025
End Date: December 24, 2025
Nunavut-wide 60 sec

As we head into the holiday season, the Nunavut fire marshal's office (NFMO) is reminding residents to keep fire safety in mind.

The winter holiday season brings extra heating, decorations, and busy gatherings, and a few simple steps can prevent serious incidents. Take the time to test smoke and carbon monoxide alarms in your home, keep heaters and vents clear, and check cords or lights for any signs of damage before you plug them in. Never leave anything cooking or burning unattended.

To support families and communities during this busy time of year, we will be sharing daily reminders through our 12 Days of Holiday Fire Safety campaign. Each day highlights a practical tip to help reduce fire risks in Nunavut homes.

The NFMO encourages everyone to follow along on the Government of Nunavut Facebook page and share these reminders with family, friends, and neighbors.

The NFMO wishes Nunavummiut a safe and peaceful holiday season.
