Canada's Competition Bureau seeks input on factors affecting food affordability

Start Date: August 31, 2026

End Date: September 4, 2026

Nunavut-wide

60 sec

In June, Canada's Competition Bureau launched an examination of competition across Canada's food supply chain to explore how greater competition can improve outcomes for Canadians at the grocery store.

This survey consists of:

- A public consultation with an extended deadline to September 4, 2026. Nunavummiut are to submit views through an online form before the deadline. Answers to the questions of interest will provide more targeted feedback, and the input will help inform examination and identify barriers to competition in the food supply chain.
- Market calls. As an alternative to a submission to the consultation, Nunavummiut may schedule a private meeting to discuss concerns and experiences. Please advise on personal availability for the next few weeks and a virtual meeting will be scheduled.

Any information provided to the bureau in this examination is protected pursuant to Section 29 of the Competition Act. Please consult our information bulletin on confidential information under the Competition Act for more information.

This feedback is invaluable in helping the Competition Bureau better understand the food supply chain and existing barriers to competition.
